NATIONAL FOREIGN TRADE COUNCIL

A Word from the President

Normally, I use this space to discuss a policy matter, but this time I want to mention something more down to earth but definitely important to NFTC staff -- physical changes in our Washington office. Thanks to Board member Jane Hoover and the generosity of Procter and Gamble, we are the lucky recipients of a treasure trove of furniture that will give us a whole new look. Most notable to those of you who visit will be a new table in our large conference room, along with new chairs that we ordered some months ago. The small conference room is also being outfitted with better chairs. In addition, most of the staff is getting desks, chairs, credenzas, etc. that will significantly improve the appearance of our offices.

On top of that we are also installing a new telephone system, which will be good news for those of you who have had to deal, probably unsuccessfully, with the idiosyncrasies of the old one. Here, too, we owe a large "thank you" to Melanie Carter-Maguire and Nortel for the gift of splendid new phones for the entire staff.

Chairman's Note

Just above, in this issue Bill has mentioned the physical changes taking place at the NFTC, but I want to say a few words about a significant policy victory we had in July - Congressional passage of the implementing legislation for the U.S.-Morocco Free Trade Agreement. Details of this success, including the overwhelming vote and our success in persuading Congress to take it up so quickly after its signing are covered in a separate article.

Instead of repeating that, I want to discuss the policy that underlies our efforts on behalf of the U.S.-Morocco FTA, as well as on behalf of the FTA with Bahrain, which we hope will be next past the Congressional post. Although both of these agreements, and some others, have been criticized by some as involving economies that are too small to make much difference and a drain on USTR's negotiating resources, I believe that criticism is misplaced.

Brendan Harrington Assumes Chairmanship of NFTC International Trade and Finance Committee

The NFTC is pleased to announce that Brendan Harrington, Director of International Relations for Eastman Kodak Company, will serve as the new Chair of the International Trade and Finance Committee. Prior to joining Kodak in 2003, Brendan was an Assistant Vice President in the Washington Government Relations office of Cargill, Incorporated, and also served as a legislative adviser to two former members of the U.S. Congress. Brendan brings a great deal of expertise and experience on trade policy and international business development issues and the NFTC looks forward to his leadership.

NFTC Doha Round Working Group to Draft New Position Papers on GATS Mode 4 and Regulatory and Tariff Transparency

As part of the ongoing work of the NFTC special project on the Doha Development Agenda, the NFTC Doha Round Working Group is in the process of developing two new position papers on issues of importance to NFTC members. The first paper will address the GATS Mode 4 negotiation on the movement of temporary personnel, a major part of the GATS negotiation and an issue that is of increasing concern and importance to U.S. business post-9/11. The second paper will focus on regulatory and tariff transparency as an important non-tariff barrier market access issue.

To learn more about the NFTC's special project on the Doha Round, please contact Mary Irace at mirace@nftc.org.

Congress Approves US Free Trade Agreements with Morocco and Australia

Two major trade votes occurred during the month of July with the Congressional approval of the U.S.-Australia and U.S.-Morocco Free Trade Agreements (FTAs). The FTAs passed with strong bipartisan support, due in part to vigorous lobbying campaigns by U.S. business coalitions and to the fact that both Australia and Morocco are steadfast allies of the United States. The solid pro-trade votes will help build momentum for future major legislation on more controversial issues, including the Central America Free Trade Agreement (CAFTA) and the renewal of Trade Promotion Authority (TPA).

The NFTC played a leadership role in supporting the US-Morocco FTA by creating and serving as co-secretariat of the U.S.-Morocco FTA Coalition, a coalition of some 100 companies and associations that supported a comprehensive and high-standard FTA with Morocco. This has led to a growing Middle East FTA focus for the NFTC. The NFTC currently serves as co-secretariat for the U.S.-Bahrain FTA Coalition and is exploring the establishment of a broader business umbrella to address the strategic development of a Middle East Free Trade Area by 2013.

NFTC Confers with Linda Conlin, New Ex-Im Board Member

NFTC staff and Art Pilser, Alternate Co-Chair of NFTC Export & Project Finance Working Group, met recently with newly-appointed Export-Import Bank Director Linda Conlin to discuss industry experience and issues related to Ex-Im products and services. Conlin, prior to joining the Board in April, 2004, served as Assistant Secretary for Trade Development at the U.S. Department of Commerce where she directed a program of industry sector offices that work to identify market opportunities, address market barriers, and advocate on behalf of small businesses as well as large corporations. Her extensive board portfolio includes a special focus on environmental issues as well as initiatives in central Europe. Conlin also expressed interest in working with NFTC and its members to consider business proposals for expanding co-financing opportunities and thereby increase U.S. competitiveness.

WTO Members Agree to Framework Package on Doha Development Agenda

WTO members achieved a major accomplishment on July 31, 2004 with the successful conclusion of a framework package at the July General Council meeting in Geneva. The agreement sets forth the parameters for moving the Doha Round negotiations to the next level of detail, particularly with respect to the negotiations on agriculture, non-agricultural market access, services and the Singapore issues. The framework package achieved a critical breakthrough on agriculture and ensures concrete progress on the Round this year.

A successful July framework package has been a number one NFTC priority this year. It was the focus of an NFTC (Continued on Page 5)

Visa Survey Quantifies Loss to American Business at Over $30 billion Since 2002

Persistent problems in government handling of visas for foreign business travelers have cost U.S. exporters more than $30 billion in revenue and indirect costs since July 2002, according to a study released June 2 by the NFTC and seven other U.S. international business groups. The study surveyed a diverse group of small, medium and large companies from across the spectrum of U.S. industries, including technology, health care, pharmaceuticals, retail, energy, automobile, publishing, engineering/construction, airlines and financial institutions. The survey findings indicate that, though a wide range of U.S. businesses have been financially affected by visa backlogs, small to medium-sized exporters experience disproportionately severe losses. A full copy of the visa survey is available at: <http://www.nftc.org/default/visasurveyresults%20final.pdf> and to view the "Recommendations for Ameliorating Impact of Visa Delays" go to <http://www.nftc.org/default/visasurveyrecommendations%20604.pdf>

Foreign Operations Appropriations Passes House with Funding Intact; NFTC Opposes Troubling Amendments Related to Ex-Im Bank

Just prior to the August recess, the House of Representatives passed the FY05 Foreign Operations Appropriations Bill, fully funding the President's request for the U.S. Export-Import Bank at a level of $126 million for the credit programs and $73 million for administrative expenses. The Trade and Development Agency is funded at $52 million, $2 million more than the President's request and last year's level and the Overseas Private Investment Corporation (OPIC) is funded at $63 million, the same as the President's request and $2 million more than FY04.

The NFTC fought amendments by Rep. Bernie Sanders (I-VT) which would limit U.S. companies' access to Ex-Im Bank financing. After pre-emptive visits to House Members by NFTC and its member companies, a Sanders amendment related to international outsourcing was scuttled, but a separate amendment passed aimed at prohibiting companies that have incorporated in Bermuda, Barbados, Cayman Islands, Antigua and Panama from using certain Ex-Im Bank products for tax purposes. The Sanders amendment passed by a broad margin, 270-132, with 82 Republicans voting for it and 3 Democrats voting against it. The NFTC, joined by the Coalition for Employment Through Exports and the National Association of Manufacturers, opposes the amendment and is working to defeat it in Conference. The Sanders amendment would be counterproductive and potentially harmful to tens of thousands of American workers whose jobs are tied directly or indirectly to U.S. exports that are supported by Ex-Im Bank. If U.S. companies are cut off from using Ex-Im Bank, many would be confronted with either losing the export sale or sourcing the products from factories abroad where they could obtain foreign export credit financing. In either case, the impact would be to reduce U.S. exports and jeopardize the jobs that are associated with those sales.

Finally, when you next visit, you will also notice that we have expanded. We have taken over the adjacent suite (directly in front of the elevator as you step out). That space will provide a home for the U.S.-South Africa Business Council and for our new affiliation with ATRIP - the Association of Travel Industry Related Professionals - which is a group that shares our open trade/anti-sanctions agenda with respect to Cuba. Jody Frisch, who was part of our USA*Engage team in 2003, is back in dual roles - as a member of the USA*Engage staff and as Executive Director of ATRIP. This space, in turn, will make available offices in our old suite for further expansion.

You may be asking yourselves what this means, besides better furniture and phones that work. As our Board members, who are the Council's stewards, know, it is tangible evidence of the NFTC's return to growth and prosperity after a period of belt-tightening. We have completed the last three fiscal years with surpluses and are using those funds for expanded activities and better service to all of you. So, just as we are polishing up our appearance, we have and will continue polishing our performance, and we hope you see those results as clearly as you will notice our new furniture!

NFTC Annual Dinner

Kofi Annan to Keynote NFTC Annual Dinner

NFTC is pleased to announce that United Nations Secretary-General Kofi Annan has agreed to be the keynote speaker at the National Foreign Trade Council 2004 World Trade Dinner/Awards Ceremony, on Friday, December 10 in New York City.

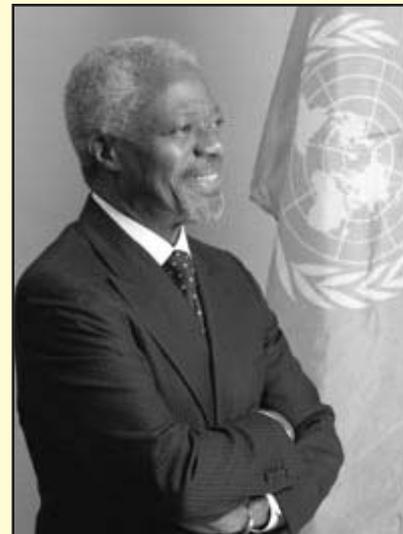

The Annual Dinner will conclude a busy day, which will include a morning NFTC Board of Directors meeting, followed by the 2004 NFTC Annual Meeting.

NFTC Senior Vice President Anne Alonzo noted that the Friday date was necessary to accommodate the Secretary-General's busy schedule. "We hope our members will agree that this is an opportunity not to be missed. It's also an opportunity to spend a fun weekend in New York during the holiday season!" she said.

Alonzo said the dinner committee will announce further details on the dinner and meeting sites, as well as weekend hotel packages soon, but encourages everyone to "save the date" now.

Kofi Annan is the seventh Secretary-General of the United Nations, and the first Secretary-General to be elected from the ranks of United Nations staff. He began his first term in 1997 and is currently serving a second term of office. Kofi Annan received the Nobel Peace Prize in 2001.

Mr. Annan's priorities as Secretary-General have been to revitalize the United Nations through a comprehensive program of reform; to strengthen the Organization's traditional work in the areas of development and the maintenance of international peace and security; to encourage and advocate human rights, the rule of law and the universal values of equality, tolerance and human dignity found in the United Nations Charter; and to restore public confidence in the Organization by reaching out to new partners and, in his words, by "bringing the United Nations closer to the people."

delegation visit to Geneva in May and was a major objective in the international business petition to national leaders the NFTC spearheaded in April. The petition was endorsed by 40 business groups from around the world. The NFTC hailed the agreement on the framework package as a critical milestone in the negotiations and urged negotiators to turn it into an ambitious outcome across-the-board.

The National Foreign Trade Council is a leading business organization advocating an open rules-based world economy. Founded in 1914 by a group of American companies that supported an open world trading system, the NFTC now serves its companies through its offices in Washington and New York.

Human Resources

Global Demographics: Challenges To Business and Human Resource Management

Over the years the NFTC has been worked with its' members on connecting issues that affect cross-border investment, trade, tax and human resources management. The intent is to maximize leverage with U.S. and non-U.S. government agencies and departments.

One near-term (five to ten year) and longer-term (ten to fifty year) issue is the impact of demographic trends in key markets such as China, Japan, Russia, South Africa and Western Europe. These trends affect not only the size and profitability of such markets but also the availability of indigenous human capital talent to manage and grow local enterprises.

Several years ago Peter G. Peterson, Chairman of the Blackstone Group, former Secretary of Commerce and a presidential advisor participated in an NFTC Board of Directors meeting. His book, Gray Dawn had just been published. That book sums up the global demographics challenge as: "There's an iceberg dead ahead. It's called global aging, and it threatens to bankrupt the great powers. As the population of the world's leading economies age and shrink, we will face unprecedented political, economic and moral challenges. But we are woefully unprepared. Now is the time to ring the alarm bell."

NFTC Provides Comments on OPIC Accountability and Advisory Mechanism (AAM)

The NFTC and other associations have filed comments with OPIC to represent business interests in the implementation of a proposed Accountability and Advisory Mechanism. This mechanism is designed to evaluate and report on OPIC compliance with environmental, social, labor, human rights, and transparency standards consistent with OPIC statutory mandates. Industry concerns are that any such mechanism not be redundant to or undermine the extensive statutory provisions and administrative procedures already in place governing OPIC operations. In addition, they should in no way diminish the ability of the OPIC board to govern the organization.

The NFTC is working to assure that any AAM will not negatively impact OPIC's competitiveness or impede OPIC's ability to carry out its foreign policy and development mandates.

International Business And Human Resources Seminar set for Detroit on September 15

The NFTC and the American Society of Employers (ASE) will co-host a full-day seminar on September 15, 2004 at the Dearborn Inn.

The theme of the program is "Protecting Your International Human Capital and Business Assets". The faculty will include speakers from Delphi Corporation, Ford Motor Company, General Motors Corporation, Kelly Services, Metaldyne and TRW Automotive, as well as from CIGNA International Expatriate Benefits, Pricewaterhouse Cooper LLP and Prudential Financial.

The agenda will focus on emerging and challenging markets and on understanding and managing political risk, personal and financial security, and international business due diligence.

For further details on the agenda and registration contact Denise Schulman at 212/399-7128 or at dschulman@nftc.org.

The underlying goal of the agreements is simple - trade helps bring growth and prosperity, and the Middle East in particular, is badly in need of both. Growth, in turn, means jobs. Jobs mean more people engaging in productive activities, more with a stake in the status quo and fewer on the streets susceptible to Al Qaeda recruitment. Obviously, that's not a short term sequence of events - it will take years - but it is an essential factor if the cycle of poverty, terrorism, and violence is ever to be broken.

Thus, President Bush was right to raise the issue of a Middle East Free Trade Area - a MEFTA - that would encompass the entire region, but he was also realistic in suggesting a ten year time frame for reaching it. That is a long process, and some of the negotiations will be difficult. USTR is right, however, to begin with the countries most ready, like Morocco and Bahrain. They have already undertaken substantial privatization, are already significantly involved in world trade, and view an FTA as both a way to obtain market access here and as a means for encouraging further reforms in their own countries. From the U.S. point of view, additional market access is also important - when your trade deficit is over $400 billion - every export counts! However, it is also wise to begin with the countries that are already farthest down the road. That way we have, as Morocco and Bahrain illustrate, high quality FTAs, with few exceptions, strong intellectual property protections, and good agriculture provisions.

These agreements, in turn, become standards that we can hold up to others in the region to encourage them to make more progress. If we had begun the negotiations with countries more reluctant to change, we would have ended up with least-common-denominator agreements that would truly have precipitated a "race to the bottom" on the part of others in the Middle East.

Morocco and Bahrain have put us on the right road in the Middle East. Getting to the end of it will take a long time, but the rewards, in terms of both trade and security, are worth it.

USA*Engage-ATRIP Alliance Opposes New OFAC/Commerce Regulations, Endorses "Cuba Sanctions Reform Act"

The alliance has been outspoken against new OFAC and Department of Commerce regulations intended to further restrict legal travel to Cuba. The new regulations include elimination of "fully-hosted" guest designation, limitations on baggage weight for travelers, redefinition of "family" member status, limitation of travel by Cuban-Americans to once every three years as opposed to once annually, and denial of rights to take basic necessities such as soap and toothpaste to relatives in Cuba. Travel licenses affected by the new regulations for return travel to the U.S. were initially to expire on June 31, but were subsequently extended to August 1 after considerable objection from the Alliance. However, licenses for outbound travel to Cuba in the month of July were voided. On July 8, the House approved amendments to the Commerce-Justice-State Appropriations bill (HR 4754) to cut off funding for enforcement of the Commerce regulations.

The Alliance has endorsed the "Cuba Sanctions Reform Act", requiring annual Congressional renewal of existing travel and trade sanctions on Cuba. The bill-introduced in the Senate by Senators Max Baucus, Pat Roberts and Mike Enzi and in the House by Reps. Butch Otter, Jeff Flake, William Delahunt George Nethercutt and Sam Farr - does not end the restrictions on travel and trade with Cuba, nor does it limit the President's authority to impose new sanctions. However, under the Cuba Sanctions Reform Act, sanctions would expire one year after the bill's enactment, unless Congress approves, and the President signs, a joint resolution to continue them.

Supreme Court Rules to Narrow the Scope of Alien Tort Litigation

The U.S. Supreme Court ruled on June 30 in Jose Francisco Sosa v. Humberto Alvarez-Machain, et al., to narrow the scope of the Alien Tort Statute of the Judiciary Act of 1789 (ATS). The ATS has been the basis in recent years of many suits against multinational businesses alleging complicity in human rights violations committed by host governments. The opinion particularly warned courts in the future to be "wary" of the foreign relations implications of using the ATS to impede the "discretion of the Legislative and Executive Branches in managing foreign affairs." While the ruling does not preclude the filing of additional suits against corporations, it urges lower courts to approach "international law" through the prism of the statute's original intent in 1789. Citing an influx of unwarranted lawsuits brought in American courts against U.S. and international companies over the last decade which misinterpret the ATS, the National Foreign Trade Council, USA*Engage and several additional business organizations filed an amicus brief at the beginning of this year that was accepted in the Sosa case. U.S.-South Africa Business Council

Her Excellency, Ambassador Barbara Masekela, South Africa; Dan O'Flaherty, Executive Director, U.S.-South Africa Business Council; Florizelle Liser, Asst. U.S. Trade Representative for Africa

U.S.-South Africa Business Council Honors New U.S. Ambassador to South Africa Dr. Jendayi Frazer and Hosts the U.S.-SACU FTA Negotiators in Atlanta

On June 24 the Business Council honored the new U.S. Ambassador to South Africa, Dr. Jendayi Frazer, with a dinner at the Jefferson Hotel in Washington, D.C. Attendees included both staff and members of the Business Council. Ambassador Frazer heard the comments and concerns of our members and offered insight into what her priorities will be when she arrives on post in late July. Before being appointed Ambassador to South Africa, Ambassador Frazer was the Special Assistant to the President and Senior Director for African Affairs at the National Security Council. The Business Council enjoyed a close working relationship with Ambassador Frazer in her previous role and looks forward to its continuation in her new post.

The 6th round of the U.S.-SACU FTA negotiations was held in Atlanta from June 22 to June 26. The U.S.-SACU FTA Coalition hosted the U.S. and SACU negotiators, as well as members of the Atlanta business community and local government officials, at a reception at the Marriott Marquis Hotel. The event was well attended and provided an excellent opportunity to meet with negotiators from both sides. Assistant USTR Flori Liser briefed Coalition members following the round and reported that the 6th round was the most productive to date. Recent meetings in Paris between Deputy USTR Josette Shiner and Director General of the South African Department of Trade and Industry, Alistair Ruiters, allowed both sides to discuss commonalities and resolve some of the impasses in the negotiations. The next round of negotiations will be held in September of 2004.

Business Council staff will be having a follow-up meeting with Deputy USTR Josette Shiner on the issue of Black Economic Empowerment in South Africa in August. The Business Council is continuing to work with the South African Embassy to host President Thabo Mbeki in New York City this fall. Within the NFTC, companies such as Altria, Citigroup, Colgate-Palmolive, Johnson & Johnson and Schlumberger, to name a few, have all been aware of how these trends will affect market viability and share, and they have taken actions to ensure that they continually recruit, develop and retain key talent for their businesses.

These companies have been pro-active in developing relationships with universities and colleges in their key markets so as to ensure a "pipeline" of choice graduates. They typically send new graduates out of the home country on short-term assignments to broaden the individual's business experience and make it clear that there is a mutual interest in a long-term employment relationship.

These companies also recognize that knowledge is a strategic resource and that knowledge workers are in high demand but short supply. Partly this is a function of technological developments, but successful companies will be those that support strong education systems and lifetime learning opportunities. Companies that can share knowledge across borders will be the winners in the 21st century.

At the NFTC we encourage knowledge sharing amongst and between our member companies via our various working groups, surveys and special studies and open forum meetings and educational seminars.
